

Historical Papers Research Archive, University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, South Africa, 2018

199 boxes

The collection contains the research working papers of Elaine Katz, which mainly relate to gold mining on the Witwatersrand, Silicosis in miners, Labour and South African politics, particularly in the Transvaal at the turn of the 20th century.

The working papers of Elaine Katz were deposited by the family after her death in 2017. The arrangements of the files and index cards have been largely retained in the order in which they were kept by Elaine Katz in her filing cabinets and index card boxes.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

Elaine Katz was a South African historian and a world authority on the history of the South African mining industry, early trade unionism, medical history and the history of Johannesburg.

She will be remembered for her two masterful works of South African historical scholarship, which were based respectively on her M.A., earned in 1974 at the University of the Witwatersrand and on her Doctoral dissertation for which she was awarded her PhD by Wits in 1990. Her first impressive study was 'A Trade Union Aristocracy: the Transvaal White Working Class and the General Strike of 1913' (1976), published by the African Studies Institute at Wits. In 1994, Wits University Press published her authoritative study, 'White Death: Silicosis on the Witwatersrand Gold Mines 1886-1918'. These two works established Elaine's reputation as a leading historian of the South African gold mining industry. She gathered international accolades and her reputation was enhanced by her journal publications and presentations to a range of international conferences on mining history.

In 1995, Elaine achieved the by no means minor distinction in academic circles of publishing a pioneering article in one of the top rated economic history journals of the time, the Economic History Review (UK) with a path-breaking critical article on a key debate of the decade, 'Outcrop and deep level mining in South Africa before the Anglo-Boer War: re-examining the Blainey thesis'. This frequently cited article brought her scholarship to the attention of an overseas audience and fostered much interest in the complexities of the South African version of mining capitalism and the links between technology, geology and labour issues.

Elaine is additionally remembered for her work, together with Eric Axelson and Edward Tabler, on the publication Baines on the Zambezi, 1858-1859, a prestige collector's limited edition published by the Brenthurst Press in 1982. This book was the eighth book in the first Brenthurst Africana series and remains one of the most sought after.

In 2008, Elaine contributed a major piece on Johannesburg to the New Encyclopaedia of Africa, published in the USA and edited by John Middleton. In her final years, her research took her into the subject of the role of American mining engineers and mining technology in the Witwatersrand gold mining industry; a recent talk on this subject at the Rand Club was received with accolades. Elaine also became interested in Jewish genealogy and in her own extensive family history, and applied her skills of careful scholarly research and data gathering to this new area of interest.

Elaine Katz taught at Wits for many years and she was an excellent, demanding yet encouraging lecturer and teacher. She was versatile, serving successively as a lecturer and later senior lecturer in the Departments of History, Economic History and Communications Studies at Wits and, following her formal retirement, she held an honorary research fellowship in the Wits History Department from 1995 until her passing.

B INDEX CARDS

The index cards form an integral part of the research collection of Elaine Katz. They contain keywords, themes and names of people/authors, all of which are references to the large body of research material used by EK for her publications and academic work. Some of the index cards also contain excerpts of text passages from published works.

The Index cards were stored in certain groups in index card boxes, which were labelled. Within these groups the index cards were also labelled. The original order of this system has been retained and has been used for the archival description of the index cards. The content of each box has been divided in groups for the purpose of digitisation. The labels within each of these groups are listed accordingly, even when there are no index cards belonging to a certain label. Some of the terms used in the index are representative of the language and the discourse used at the time, e.g.. Natives, and have been retained for searching.

- B2 Personalities / Persons
This section contains index cards relating to personalities, as per original order and description by Elaine Katz. They either refer to authors of certain subjects, or to persons and subjects relating to them. At times there seems to be no relation to a person, such as B2.1, however the labelling used by Elaine Katz has been retained.
- B2.1 Personalities: General: A-G
The labels on the index card do not reflect Personalities, but subject matter as listed below.
- B2.1.1 Group 1
Apprenticeship schemes; Attitude to unskilled work; Black labour cheaper; Blasting certificate; Contracts failed Afrikaners.
- B2.1.2 Group 2

- Cost of living; Dutch; Ethnicity; Fears +- Mining; Language; Learners formal.
- B2.1.3 Group 3
Learners informal; The locals who-what-why; Locally trained, not skilled; Locals training after 1908.
- B2.2 Personalities: General: H-Q
Personalities amongst others from the mining sector, managers, engineers, mentioned in newspaper clips, government ministers and commissioners, authors, members of parliament, journalists.
