BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

Born Johannesburg 1949 and named Arnold Michael, his parents were political activists (mother a lawyer, father a trade unionist) and later exiles in Swaziland (from May 1962); schooled in Johannesburg and Swaziland (Waterford Kamhlaba), journalist, researcher-activist (in the UK), took a civil engineering degree at City University London (1974-1979); became an international 'cooperante' (solidarity worker) in Mozambique (1979-1988), and later a development specialist and policy analyst at DBSA (1988-1994). He was seconded to the Department of Water Affairs and Forestry in 1994 and later was appointed Deputy DG and then Director General (1997-2005). Muller was also a member of the 1st National Planning Commission, 2010-2015. After his contract with the DWAF was not renewed (2015) he joined the University of the Witwatersrand (Wits) School of Public & Development Management (P&DM), later renamed the Wits School of Governance (WSG), as an Adjunct Professor and became something of an academic, writing numerous papers for peer reviewed journals and book chapters. He also continued his involvement with international organisations such as the United Nations, the Global Water Partnership, the ADB and SADC, as well as advising the SA government. He has always been, and continues to be, a prolific writer of articles in the South African national press.

H DEPARTMENT OF WATER AFFAIRS & FORESTRY (DWAF), 1994-2005, 116 boxes - SECTIONS WITH RESTRICTED ACCESS

Muller was seconded to DWAF from the DBSA in 1994; appointed DDG in 1997 and thereafter DG from 1997 to 2005. He served under 3 Ministers: Kader Asmal (1994-1999), Ronnie Kasrils (1999-2004) and Buyelwa Sonjica (2004-2005). The bulk of the collection covers the period 1994-2005, with some earlier and later policy-related documents.

- H1 Pre-DWAF, 7 boxes
Included here is relevant material that pre-dates Muller joining the Department in 1994-1995. Prior to 1994, Muller worked on water policy issues with a variety of organisations including both official government agencies as well as groups from the 'democratic movement' through a committee called SCOWSAS which he helped to establish. This effort mirrored what was happening more or less formally in other sectors where 'negotiating forums' or other structures were established as part of the wider transitional process of negotiation and policy development. This work overlapped Muller's formal tasks with DBSA which served to inform these parallel activities.
- H1.1 Standing Committee on Water Supply and Sanitation (SCOWSAS)
The Standing Committee on Water Supply and Sanitation (SCOWSAS), was established in January 1992 with representation from the democratic movement's political parties, trade unions, NGOs, the Water Research Commission, and officials from local and national government. SCOWSAS undertook a national policy review and developed a set of recommendations for the sector. Perhaps most important of these was the call for a single national agency to take overall responsibility for water supply and sanitation. This recommendation was subsequently adopted as part of the new government's political programme.
- H1.1.1 Correspondence, 1992-1996, 1f.
Correspondents include: CODESA Daily Management Committee; National Economic Forum; Palmer Development Group; Multiparty Negotiating Process; Local Government Negotiating Forum; Teqnovu Ltd; Durban Water & Waste; Norwich Life; Department of Regional & Land Affairs; SA Chamber of Business; Rand Water; DBSA; Mvula Trust;

Principles, strategy & decision to separate acts

NOTE: It started with the RDP saying that the Water legislation would need to be reviewed and Kader in 1994 saying that would be a priority. He set up the Water Law Review process (1994+) which produced a set of about 50 Principles (end 1995 / beginning 1996). Those were then reviewed internally (mid-1996) and approved by Cabinet (Nov 1996). Out of that came the conclusion that there should be two separate Acts (and policy processes) which led to the WSA (1997) on the one hand and the National Water Policy Paper (1997) and the NWA in 1998.
