

63 Boxes

This collection was originally donated by Dr Max Coleman and Audrey Coleman. Gradually it has assimilated material from other sources, notably The South African History Archives (SAHA) and Graham Bailey (member of DPSC).

Some of the earlier material appears to have been lost in the Khotso house bombings where the DPSC offices were located. It should also be noted that the DPSC operated under extreme conditions of State repression (banning orders, detentions etc.) and as a result certain transactions (meetings etc.) went unrecorded. Although the DPSC did not operate in isolation, the sheer numbers of those detained and the impossibility of dealing with every case should also be taken into account.

The DPSC operated on a national level. This collection contains material from the Johannesburg based DPSC. Although material is included in this collection from other regions it is not complete.
