E. 47

A 10-POINT PROGRAMME FOR PEACE

1. A cease-fire in Korea, withdrawal of foreign armies and discussion of the matter in the UN with People's China as a member; an end to U.S. intervention in Formosa and French military action in Viet Nam.
2. Condemnation of "attempts to break past agreements" by rearming Germany and sabotaging the demilitarisation of Japan.
3. A declaration that attempts by force to maintain inequality among peoples and block their attempts to gain independence are a dangerous source of war. Condemnation of all forms of racial discrimination as promoting hatred and a danger to peace.
4. A definition of aggression as the "first state which uses armed force under any pretext against any state," without qualification of political, economic or strategic considerations and without pretexts based upon the internal situation of any states.
5. Enactment by all countries of "a law for the protection of peace"- aimed at making the dissemination of war propaganda a crime of deepest gravity.
6. A demand that an international tribunal examine Gen. MacArthur's responsibility for "ruthless measures" against the civilian population of Korea.
7. A call for the unconditional banning, with strict control, of atomic, bacteriological, chemical and all other means of mass destruction; and that the first government to use such weapons shall be guilty of a criminal act. A meeting of the five great powers including People's China, to reduce armies and armaments from one third to one half within the next two years.
8. The re-establishment of normal trade relations between nations. Source of conflict of passage from peace to war economy.
9. A wider interchange of cultural treasures and literature.
10. The establishment of a new World Peace Council representative of all the peoples of the world to carry forward the struggle for peace.
